

Industrial Contractor in Pontiac, MI On Board for GM Plant Downsizing Efforts

Lee Contracting is a local industrial contractor in Pontiac, MI hoping to assist General Motors with its downsizing efforts. With all of the plant consolidations in the state of Michigan, Lee will be busy throughout the next 9 to 12 months.

June 08, 2009 – Pontiac, MI - With General Motors recent bankruptcy announcements and plans for restructuring their existing plants, many local Michigan jobs will be lost; 6,600 of the 9,000 jobs to be exact. This will bring a devastating blow to the Pontiac, MI and Oakland County areas.

Throughout all of this temporary tragic news, there is hope. Michigan will recover and will be even stronger than before. Parts suppliers for GM & Chrysler will be forced to restructure their facilities as well. Many manufacturing plants will be relocating and consolidating into smaller, more cost efficient locations. This is where Lee Contracting thrives. While providing turnkey solutions for these types of consolidating projects, Lee also helps companies find the most efficient ways to save time and money in the end.

After more than 20 years of assisting the automotive industry, of Metro Detroit, expand into larger and larger facilities, Lee Contracting will now help those same companies right-size. This, in turn, will be the beginning of a better era for the rebuilding of Michigan and the automotive industry as a whole.

The Big 3 and its suppliers will be able to begin fresh with new innovative ideas for re-energizing a suffering Michigan economy. Lee Contracting is priming to help Michigan back to the top where it should be.
